Meandering Bits

something clever

« Four Centuries of the Royal Society
Astronaut Held on Attempted Murder Charges »

Apartment Story Web

The Gothamberg is a really cool visualization where you can interact with stories from people living in apartments. Users are free to contribute their own stories to the system. The stories are linked by keywords that the user types in ALL CAPITALS. These words from a web that ties different stories together "revealing complex connections between characters & places occuring in apartment buildings." Its real fun to play around with. Note: you will need to click an author to get started on the Gothamberg page.

The same site also has a really cool piece called "Apartment" where users build their own apartments by typing sentances. The semantics of the sentence are broken down and used to create the blue print. The apartments are then grouped together into daily cities. And the best part is you can browse the apartments and cities in 3D. Definitely worth a look.

This entry was posted on Tuesday, February 6th, 2007 at 9:03 am and is filed under Visualization. You can follow any responses to this entry through the RSS 2.0 feed. Both comments and pings are currently closed.

Comments are closed.

Meandering Bits is proudly powered by WordPress
Entries (RSS) and Comments (RSS).